

Breakout Session

2:45 - 3:45 PM

Africa 70

Zachary Finn

Director, Risk Management, Henriott

Managing Workers Compensation Costs to Create Stability in Uncertain Times

In these uncertain economic times, managing workers' compensation costs is crucial for food industry businesses. This presentation provides practical strategies to reduce WC insurance premiums, improve workplace safety, and boost your bottom line. Learn how WC premiums are calculated, where insurers profit, and how to tell if self-insuring is right for your company. Attendees will gain valuable insights into identifying improvement opportunities to reduce WC claims, premiums, and indirect costs. Discover how these improvements can lead to increased productivity and create stability in your business amidst challenging economic conditions.

Bio:

Zach Finn, MSM, ARM, AINS, HACCP: Zach Finn is a risk management expert specializing in the food and beverage industry. He and his firm help manufacturers identify and mitigate risks across their supply chain, offering both commercial insurance placement and comprehensive risk management solutions. With experience as a Global Risk Manager and a HACCP certification, Zach has firsthand knowledge of managing complex risks and ensuring food safety. He helps companies develop proactive risk management strategies beyond just buying insurance, protecting both their brand and bottom line. Zach has been featured in major publications for his expertise in the field.